ASRT institutional products are intended for educational and institutional use. These products are licensed for noncommercial, educational in-house or online educational course use only in educational and corporate institutions. Any broadcast, duplication, circulation, public viewing, conference viewing or Internet posting is strictly prohibited. This product may not be used as an individual continuing education course or as part of any other for profit continuing education course.

This institutional license permits the use of the content at one location and prohibits sharing between multiple sites. Please email onlinece@asrt.org or call 800-444-2778, Ext. 1082 for corporate pricing options for use by multiple facilities.

While this product is designed to be compatible with most Learning Management Systems, ASRT does not guarantee its compatibility with all LMSs, and is not responsible for customizing this product to suit the requirements of individual institutions and educational programs. Use of the product constitutes an agreement to these terms. In return for the licensed use, the licensee hereby releases and waives any and all claims and/or liabilities that may arise against ASRT as a result of the product and its licensing.

The carefully researched information contained in this activity is generally accepted as factual at the time of production. The ASRT and the presenter disclaim any responsibility for new or contradictory data that may become available before the next revision. Radiologic technologists must take into account existing state statutes and institutional policies as they relate to the information presented.

This license does permit your institution to share the content of these products with patrons within your institution.